

Shared Credentials

- Still surprisingly common
- These credentials are generally tied to full cluster-admin access
- Does not allow for auditing cluster access
- Generally results in far too many users with far too much access

Service Accounts

- Manage a service account for each user
- Manage authentication and authorization fully within Kubernetes
- Lots of duplication, hard to safely control/distribute credentials
- Not intended for this use case